

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Monday, October 29, 2007

XPEDX CINCINNATI DIVISION TO HOST “LIVING GREEN EXPO” NOV. 8

Free event for Tri-State area businesses to be held at company’s Reading Road facility

CINCINNATI, October 29, 2007—The xpedx Cincinnati Division will host its first-ever “Living Green Expo” for area printers, manufacturers, retailers and building managers on Thursday, November 8.

The expo, to be held at the company’s year-old Reading Road Facility, will provide education and information on environmentally sound printing, packaging and cleaning/maintenance products and processes. Representatives from businesses of all sizes may attend the free expo, which begins at noon.

xpedx and more than 30 top suppliers of paper, graphics, packaging and janitorial-sanitary products will help attendees understand the issues, techniques and products associated with environmentally responsible, or “green” business practices.

“We are finding there are a lot of basic questions from our customers—and their customers—about the best way to incorporate green products and practices into their businesses,” explained Chris Baum, division manager of the xpedx Cincinnati Division. “xpedx wants to answer some of those questions and show new offerings in the marketplace that can help meet their needs.”

xpedx is North America’s largest supplier of environmentally responsible printing papers, graphics, packaging and facility supplies and equipment. It offers leading brands from manufacturers worldwide and has more than 260 locations in the U.S., Mexico and Canada. xpedx was the first North American printing paper distributor to obtain chain-of-custody certifications from the Sustainable Forestry Initiative (SFI) and Forest Stewardship Council (FSC). These certifications apply to all of its locations as well as xpedx.com

Throughout the day Derek Smith, a consultant and speaker on "green" issues, will discuss the impact of environmental trends on business.

The “Living Green Expo” will run from noon to 6:00 p.m. on Thursday, November 8, 2007, at the xpedx Cincinnati Division facility, 4510 Reading Road. For more information, please contact Gene Rogers of xpedx at 513-681-2600.

The xpedx Cincinnati Division is among the largest in the xpedx network by volume and size of operations. It operates a 250,000 square-foot Class A distribution/logistics center and offices and serves as the hub for xpedx operations in Dayton, Columbus, Indianapolis, Ft. Wayne, Louisville and Lexington. The facility employs 200 and serves thousands of customers in Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana. ###

Editor’s note: xpedx is always entirely lowercase.

CONTACTS: Chris Baum, general manager of the xpedx Cincinnati Division, 513-681-2600; Press: Lisa Jonas, corporate marketing communications manager, 513-965-2938.